About Wilkes College

Wilkes College had its beginning in 1933 when Bucknell University, responding to a request of community leaders, established its Junior College in Wilkes-Barre. On June 26, 1947, Bucknell University Junior College came to an end and Wilkes College received its charter as a four-year, coeducational, liberal arts college. The College has grown to its current enrollment of approximately 2,100 full-time day students and 500 part-time evening school students and over 300 graduate students.

From its inception the College has been dedicated to these twin goals — a sound and stimulating intellectual experience for students and a program of service to the community.

It was inevitable that the new college should be non-sectarian, for its purpose was to serve all students equally and its supporters wished the College to integrate itself with all constructive efforts in the community. It was believed that these ends could be served best by an independent college that was interdenominational in its influence and non-denominational in its control. With responsibility came a pressing desire to strengthen the work of the faculty, united in their belief that the intellectual and spiritual resources of the student are vigorous where the creative mind is free.

The College offers baccalaureate degrees in all academic areas of the Humanities, the Social Sciences and the Natural Sciences. A graduate program offers a Master of Business Administration; Master of Science degrees in the following concentrations: Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics; and Master of Science in Education degrees in the following concentrations: Education, Elementary Education, English, History, Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry and Physics.

The College also offers the Wilkes-Hahnemann Cooperative Medical Education Program in Family Medicine. This was developed to increase the number of family physicians in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Wilkes College and Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital initiated the innovative six-year program in family medicine in September, 1972. Successful completion of the program enables a student to earn both a baccalaureate degree and Doctor of Medicine degree concurrently six years after entering the freshman year at Wilkes College.

Growth of Women's Athletics

Paralleling the growth of Wilkes College has been the steady rise of the women's athletic program which has blossomed into one of the finest among liberal arts colleges in the state.

Under the leadership of Doris Saracino, director of women's athletics, the school now boasts intercollegiate competition in six areas — basketball, field hockey, tennis, swimming, volleyball, and softball. The Wilkes women compete in the Northeastern Pennsylvania Women's Athletic Association (NPWIAA), Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC), Susquehanna Field Hockey Association, and the Eastern Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (EAIAW).

The field hockey squad, coached by Gay Meyers, has won three straight NPWIAA titles and placed fourth in the first two MAC tournaments. The team gained added distinction in the fall of 1976 by having two of its members chosen to the Susquehanna Field Hockey Association All-Star team.

Also picking up momentum is the tennis program, only recognized as a varsity sport in 1973 and organized by present coach Sandra Bloomberg, but already the winner of back-to-back NPWIAA net crowns in 1975 and 1976.

Another sport projecting a bright future is the Colonel basketball program, which holds the distinction of having been the first women's sport organized at the College in 1960. Wilkes College served as host for the third Annual Middle Atlantic Conference Tournament in March.

Newest teams in the Wilkes fold are swimming, 1975; volleyball, 1976; and softball, which made its debut in the spring of 1977. Wilkes women also have joined previously all-male squads such as golf and cross country and are proving that they are worthy of any athletic challenge.

ABOUT WILKES UNIVERSITY

Wilkes University is a comprehensive, independent, nonsectarian university, devoted to student growth and learning. Wilkes remains committed to preparing students to meet the opportunities and challenges of the 21st century through a multi-disciplinary and technologically advanced education. Built upon the liberal arts and stressing excellence in communications skills and quantitative reasoning, a Wilkes education fosters an understanding of the history and nature of the world and its inhabitants, a sense of civic responsibility, and an informed appreciation of creative and artistic expression.

Wilkes seeks to be a national model for the creative interaction between faculty and students and between a university and its region. Intellectually adventurous students work closely with dedicated faculty mentors in an intimate collegiate environment to achieve excellence in their academic pursuits. Both inside and outside the classroom, Wilkes students develop leadership skills and apply knowledge and technology to improve our environment, government, economy, health care, schools, and our culture.
