

My dear Remsen,

I duly received your kind note - we are just returned from Paris
- my wife is the better, I hope, for the journey, and we are preparing for our return homeward - probably to Borne: I heartily wish you had a little more of what we abound in overmuch - locomotion: but your turn will come some day, no doubt.

Would you have the goodness to receive for me £35..6..10 of Messrs Chapman & Hall, 193 Piccadilly, and to transmit it to me at Laricius' adress (151. Rue de Grenelle, Paris? M. Germain) in the shape of a draft on Rothschild here?
I shall also have to trouble you to take Chambery to M. Jean Marnier - ^(3.) over the M. Cenis & then by rail from Susse to Turin & Genoa: it is said to be cheap & expeditious - if only the cold in the mountain-pass be endurable: we tried it, years ago, and my wife suffered greatly: but by the new arrangements, and an earlier start, perhaps we may succeed better: anything to avoid the sea-rack!

Our address here is 6 Rue de Castiglione, Place Vendôme - but the old address may be safer for remittances.

25th Sept.

My dear Uncle,

The draft has just reached me safely - very many thanks for your kindness in sending it - I have no doubt your remittance reached Robert, as I never heard any thing to the contrary, but I will mention it to him when I see him this evening; his present address is 6, rue de Castiglione. I am extremely concerned to hear that you are unwell - a little change of air would do you good - Please take care of yourself - and with my father's love & mine ever believe me

²⁰ The October dividends the moment they are due, - I hope to get away very soon. Always the old story of trouble to you - on which you get nothing but the very sincere gratitude of yours affectionately ever, Robt Browning.

My wife's kindest regard to you - We rejoice to hear all your family is well: one boy is particularly well, just now. Why don't you run over & catch a glimpse of your old kind friends, the Poifants?
I believe we shall return by the new railway route from Lyons by
