

To

Mrs Maclean

My Dear Madam.

I presume you have learned before this that your son has taken to himself a wife in the person of my daughter Augustus. - We should have been much pleased with your presence at the ceremony, but your son seemed to think that it could not be without putting you to inconvenience. - We now hope that you will either accompany them on their return, or at least follow them very soon, and eventually take up your future abode with them. - in that case I think I can safely promise on the part of Augustus, that you will ever find her a respectful and dutiful daughter, anxious to make your future home pleasant in any way in her power. - Augustus has been accustomed to a large domestic circle, and I fear if she is too lonely in her new home that she will get homesick. - I asked you at her request a small box of the cake, and hope it may prove good.

I presume you son will write and let you know how soon you may expect him and August in Boston in course. In the hope that an intimate acquaintance with your new daughter may be very satis-factory to yourself, and give you very great confidence in the happiness of your son, so far as she is concerned, I am I can cheerfully say — Most truly,

Yours S. J. Waller.
