Andrew Todd McClintock was born February 2d, 1810, and is consequently now in the seventy-second year of his age. The scene of his birth was in the old town of Northumberland, in the county of that name, in this State. He is of Scotch-Irish extraction; the scion of a stock which has contributed very largely, especially within the last fifty years, to the galaxy of Pennsylvania's eminent public men. His grandfather was James McClintock, who was born in the town of Raphoe, county of Donegal, Ireland, where, also, Andrew's father, Samuel, was ushered into the world. The latter came to this country at the age of eighteen, and was followed, seven years later, by the grandfather. They settled in Northumberland county, where both lived and died; the father at Northumberland, in 1812, aged thirty-six years.

Andrew's mother was Hannah, the daughter of Col. Andrew Todd, of Trappe, Montgomery county, a soldier of the Revolution, and through her our respected fellow-citizen is related to the Porters, the Hamills, and other leading families in Montgomery county.

Mr. McClintock was but two years of age when his father died. His earlier education was received at the public schools of his native county—very primitive affairs at that early date; after which he was sent to Kenyon College, Ohio, of which, at the time, the late Bishop McIlvaine was President. There were in attendance at the college at the same time the late Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War during the war; Judge Frank Hurd, one of Ohio's most distinguished Democrats; and Rufus King, Dean of the Law School of Cincinnati. He remained in this institution three years, devoting himself assiduously to study, and achieving the happiest results.

Upon leaving college he returned to Northumberland, and soon after entered the office of James Hepburn, Esq., a very talented attorney of that day, as a student at law. Here he pursued his studies diligently for about a year, at the expiration of which time he came to Wilkes-Barre, where he completed his law course in the office and under the tuition of the late Hon. George W. Woodward. He passed a highly creditable examination, and was admitted to the bar on August 8th, 1836, upon the recommendation of John N. Conyngham, Chester Butler, and Volney L. Maxwell, the examining committee. Immediately afterwards he entered into partnership with his late tutor, and the law firm of Woodward & McClintock continued and prospered until 1838. In 1839 Mr. McClintock was appointed District Attorney of the county by Hon. Ovid F. Johnson, Attorney General of the Commonwealth, who, by the way, was a descendent of Rev. Jacob Johnson, who settled in the Wyoming Valley prior to the Revolution. David R. Porter was at this time the Governor of the State. Mr. McClintock discharged the duties of this, the only political office he ever held in his life, with distinguished ability and perfect conscientiousness for the term of one year, at the expiration of which time, public position having become distasteful to him, he resigned, and resumed his private practice. He has frequently since been solicit to accepted political stations of high trust and emolument, but has persistently refused. When, in 1867, an act of the Legislature gave Luzerne title to an Additional Law Judge, the members of the bar en masse, and very many of our best and most prominent business men, turned instinctively to Andrew T. McClintock as the man of all others in the profession best fitted for the post. He would bring to it a degree of dignity that would insure universal respect, a profound knowledge of the law, and a fairness and impartiality against which no taint of suspicion had ever for an instant rested. The following correspondence is the best attestation of how generally this conviction was entertained, and how universal was the regret occasioned by Mr. McClintock's final refusal to accept the honor tendered him:

WILKES-BARRE, PA., April 8, 1867.

We, the undersigned, members of the Democratic party of Luzerne county, are very desirous that Andrew T. McClintock, Esq., should become the Additional Law Judge of the Eleventh Judicial district. And we urge upon him to accept the position, should it be tendered to him. We have the fullest confidence that he will be the choice of the Democratic party beyond all question, and we shall do all that it may be necessary for us to do to secure his nomination. It is simply unnecessary to speak of Mr. McClintock as a man and as a lawyer. He is known to every one, and he is without reproach, whilst his professional ability is acknowledged with profound respect here and elsewhere.

WILKES-BARRE, April 10, 1867.

A. T. MCCLINTOCK, Esq.,

Dear Sir: The Legislature of the State has passed an act providing for the election of an Additional Law Judge for the several courts of Luzerne county. The very great magnitude and importance of the interests of our county, to be chiefly protected and administered in our civil and criminal courts, places the question of the judgeship high above the region of partisan politics. We need for the place a judge who shall be learned in the law, of known integrity of character, and high moral courage. Satisfied from a life-long acquaintance with you that you possess the qualifications we seek, we respectfully urge you to permit the use of your name for the office indicated. And we cheerfully pledge you our best efforts, and the use of all proper and legitimate means to secure for you the same expression of opinion and desire from the great majority of your fellow-citizens of Luzerne county.

WILKES-BARRE, April 15, 1867.

A. T. MCCLINTOCK, Esq.,

Dear Sir: At a meeting of the members of the bar of Luzerne county on the 8th inst., the undersigned were appointed a committee to solicit the use of your name for the position of Additional Law Judge for our several courts, under the act of Assembly recently passed. We therefore present the question directly to your consideration. The unanimity and urgency on the subject on the part of your brethren of the bar is the most emphatic view we can offer you. It is their clear and spontaneous desire, and we are authorized to state that no ordinary consultation of your private feelings can override a call to serve the public made by so large and responsible body of your fellow-citizens. We need not urge our views of your qualifications for the duties of this office, nor the obvious necessity that the very first order of qualifications should be brought to its duties. Your knowledge of the situation is very full, and we leave the whole matter with you, hoping that a careful and conscientious review of the case will enable us to report your affirmative response to those whom we represent.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

C. L. LAMBERTON,
HENRY M. HOYT,
V. L. MAXWELL,
S. S. WINCHESTER.

WILKES-BARRE, April 24, 1867.

Gentlemen: Your communication of the 15th inst., informing me of the proceedings of a meeting of the bar of Luzerne county, held on the 8th inst., was duly received. I have given careful consideration to the reasons so kindly urged to induce me to permit the use of my name for the position of Additional Law Judge for our several courts, under the act recently passed. I did not suppose that anything could be urged to induce me to hesitate in answering such a suggestion, but your strong appeal, and the appeal made to me from my fellow-citizens, without distinction of party, have forced upon me the consideration of whether my duty should overrule my inclination, and have, I confess, greatly embarrassed me. I would like to oblige my friends, and am deeply sensible of the compliment they have paid me; but if, before receiving such expressions of confidence in my fitness for the position, I distrusted my ability to discharge the duties thereof with acceptance, I certainly am now convinced that I could not fulfill the expectations which it is evident my brethren of the bar and my fellow-citizens entertain of my qualifications for the office. The standard which, in your kind appreciation of my qualifications, you esteem me fitted to fill is so high that I cannot undertake even to try to come up to it. I am averse to public life—the result, probably, of too exclusive attention to the calls of my profession. I greatly prefer the bar to the bench, and cannot bring myself to the point of consenting to the use of my name for the position of judge. Another consideration has its influence in bringing me to this conclusion. I have been counsel for many years for interests that embrace a large portion of the business and property of our county. My relations to those interests have been so confidential and intimate that I could not, on the bench, feel free to sit in cases where those interests were involved, even though they might arise after my relations as counsel to such interests had ceased, and I could not, therefore, dispose of very much of what must, in the next few years, make up the greater part of the business of our courts.

With every disposition to oblige my friends, and with a deep sense of their kindness in the expression of their partiality to me for the position of Additional Law Judge, I must decline, decidedly and absolutely, the use of my name for the office. I cannot consent to accept the position.

Very truly, your friend,

ANDREW T. McCLINTOCK.

To Messrs. C. L. Lamberton, Henry M. Hoyt, V. L. Maxwell, and S. S. Winchester, Committee of the Bar of Luzerne county.

By 1877 it had been ascertained that the new constitution was in many particulars defective. It was generally acknowledged a vast improvement upon the old instrument, but it was not in mortal power to foresee all our possible political wants and contingencies, so that brainy, industrious, and careful as was the Constitutional Convention, that body left a number of things undone needed to make the fundamental law as nearly as possible perfect, and did other things so imperfectly that a revision was already imperatively demanded. To make this revision was a delicate and difficult task—one that could not safely be assigned except to the very clearest legal minds in the State. The Legislature authorized the appointment of a commission for the purpose, and the choosing of its members fell to the lot of Governor John F. Hartranft, who took counsel from the wisest of his friends, and made the following excellent selections: Daniel Agnew, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; Benjamin Harris Brewster, perhaps the greatest lawyer at the Philadelphia bar; Samuel E. Dimmick, Attorney General of the Commonwealth;

William A. Wallace, then United States Senator; William H. Playford, then a State Senator; Henry W. Williams, a Judge of the Supreme Court; and Andrew T. McClintock. It is not too much to say that, distinguished as were each and all of these gentlemen in the profession of the law, Mr. McClintock was the peer of the ablest of them. The commission held a number of sessions, Mr. McClintock participating actively in all the discussions, and returned its report to the Governor, by which official it was submitted to the Legislature. No action has as yet been taken upon it by that body, but it is the opinion of many of the best legal minds of the Commonwealth that in such delay a grave error of judgment has been committed, and many important interests neglected.

Mr. McClintock is one of the busiest men in the community in which he lives. He has a very large and important clientage, including the Pennsylvania Coal Company, the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, and the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company, for which corporations he has been many years counsel. In 1870 Princeton College conferred upon him the degree of L.L. D. He is a Director of the Wyoming National Bank, President of the Hollenback Cemetery Association, and President of the Luzerne County Bible Society. He has been a Director of the Wilkes-Barre City Hospital since its organization; is a Director of the Home for Friendless Children, and President of the Wilkes-Barre Law and Library Association. He is a member of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society of Wilkes-Barre, and during the Centennial year was its President. He is an Elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkes-Barre, and has been chosen a number of times a Delegate to the General Assembly of that denomination.

Mr. McClintock has always been an old-school Democrat, but never in any sense a politician. His views have been those of the Jeffersons and Jacksons of his party, and his contempt for that class which has, from time to time, for selfish purposes, sought to compromise the views which made the names mentioned and the party they led great, has always been thorough and outspoken. This is the kind of party man who never sacrifices the esteem of his political opponents, and hence it was that nearly all the leading Republicans of his county were so willing and anxious that Mr. McClintock, Democrat though he was, should sit upon the judicial bench, to be the arbiter of their liberties and their properties. The names of Henry M. Hoyt, now Governor; Henry W. Palmer, now Attorney General; W. W. Ketcham and Garrick M. Harding, since Judges themselves; Hubbard B. Payne, since a State Senator, and others equally distinguished, and of the same party, will be noticed as among those who bear witness to the justice of this tribute to Mr. McClintock's deserving, in the flattering terms in which they speak of him in the correspondence quoted.

Mr. McClintock was married May 11th, 1841, to Augusta, daughter of Jacob Cist, of Wilkes-Barre, and has had five children, four of whom survive. His only son, Andrew Hamilton McClintock, is a member of the Luzerne county bar. J. Vaughan Darling, also a member of the Luzerne bar, is his son-in-law.

Mr. McClintock is above the medium height, and of more than average heft. He has a stately presence, and kindly countenance. Having always been a man of good habits, he is wonderfully well preserved, and few would take him from his appearance to be within fifteen years as old as he is. The numerous civic positions he holds evidence the esteem in which he is held, and the faith reposed by his fellow-citizens in his resources. His charities are numerous, and of the practical sort. He has acquired a considerable fortune through his profession, but lives quietly, and utterly without ostentation. In brief, he is one of the most useful and most respected of our citizens, as well as in the forefront of his chosen profession. He is the oldest member of the Luzerne county bar in active practice, and is still in full possession of all his normal mental vigor. Had his ambition led him in that direction, he might have occupied high political positions, but he always preferred the private station, and therein has achieved such honors as few men have in similar pursuits had the brains, patience, and perseverance to lay up for themselves.
