COLUMBUS OR THE VIKINGS?

Which one "discovered" America? Or was it someone else? At our meeting on Nov. 14 Mr. Frederick J. Pohl presented some impressive evidence to support his intriguing theory that a Scotsman, Prince Henry Sinclair, visited the continent of North America before any other Europeans. Extensive research and historical detective work by Mr. Pohl seems to indicate that Prince Henry arrived in what is now Nova Scotia on June 2, 1398 where he stayed for nearly a year. He then sailed down the coast, landing in Massachusetts where he explored the area around Concord and Lexington before sailing back to his home in the Orkney Islands. Mr. Pohl's extensive research through letters and narrative reports of the time and his personal visits to many sites in order to locate the areas described, have convinced him and many others of the validity of his claims. The story is told in his latest book, Prince Henry Sinclair.

Mr. Pohl has also studied the Vikings for 35 years and written several books on their travels. In addition he has found time to do enough historical detective work on the life of William Shakespeare and to publish Like To The Lark, showing, for the first time, the historical order of Shakespeare's works.

Mr. Pohl gave a lively and enlightening talk on the experiences leading to the writing and publishing of his books.

We are indebted to Johanne Smith who arranged for Mr. Pohl's appearance. Jo Dakin was responsible for the delicious punch, cake, cookies and coffee served at the meeting.

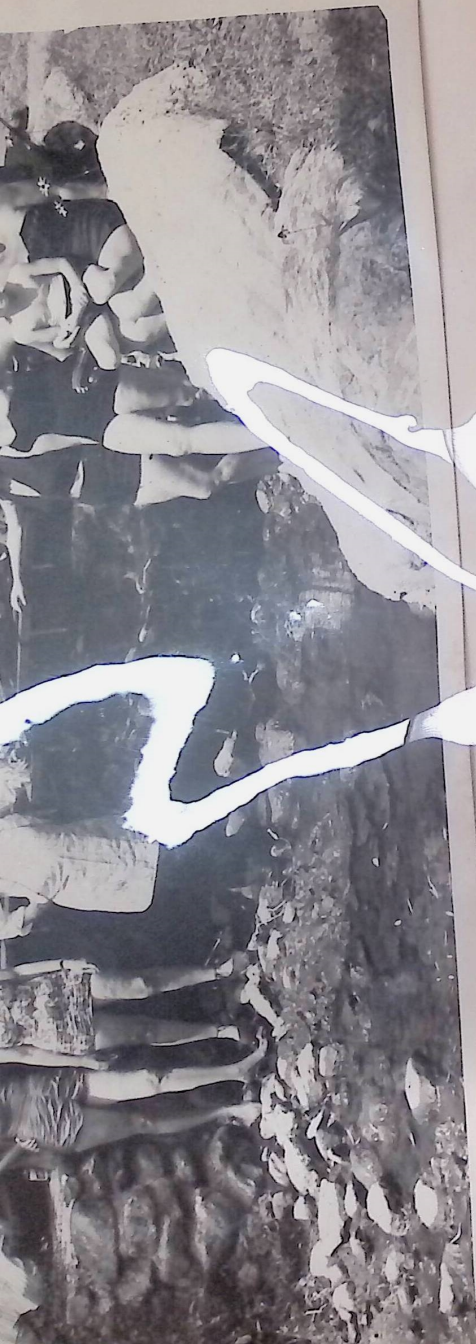

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Frederick J. Pohl, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Murphy, Mr. Saul Pulver, Miss Elizabeth Spetnagle, Miss Marjorie Griffith, Mrs. Helen Weber, and Cathy Sullivan's father.

OF Houses and Pets.

Have you a house pet? Or a "pet house?" If so, why not send your editors a photo for our new feature which begins with this issue? Black and white pictures are preferable but color prints can be used, too. We will do our best to return them if you wish.
