

FABLE

Once upon a time a weak windowpane expert named adj.

noun

Nolan felt a good pain. He sent for name of person in room

adj.

a folly surgeon who looked at his fallen

adj.

adj.

stomach and said " you b ". Then he muttered exclamation

humbly "I see your trouble. The slender adverb

noun

on your late stomach is overlapping the trunk

adj.

noun

next to your kidney." The surgeon reflexly took him

adverb

to the short ward of the hospital. A nurse swabbed

adj.

his bulge with a gray solution and

noun

adj.

made a (an) wounded incision reaching from the

adj.

patient's elephant to his crab " Zest "

noun

noun

exclamation

said the surgeon, "that takes care of that queasy telephone "

adj.

noun

With that he began sewing up the incision. However, on the tenth stitch, the patient sneezed and almost pulled the umbelican

noun

out of the joint, but the surgeon took one final

noun

stitch and saved the person. MORAL: A (an)

noun

television set in time saves nine.

noun

Who am I?

I am a smelly ^{alp.} American.

I was born 1 ^{number} years ago in Texas, ^{Geo. location} when my Father first saw me he said "fiddlestix".

I am 99 feet tall,

have ^{sub.} co ^{alp.} ing brown eyes and a little complexion

My hobby ^{alp.} is collecting

Marsmen, I always

speak funny and I have made several real

motion pictures. I am married to Laney, but I have been divorced

97 times, I have given away thousands of telephones to charity.

My most prominent
physical characteristics
are my stupid nose
and my large box.

Who am I?

Answer: I am Butch