Norman,

herewith 2 versions of the schedule—

long-form, with all bells & whistles

and a pared-down narrow-margin form

The only thing we cannot get are the car service driver's cell phone #—it will be the same driver both days. That we'll get Monday night or early Tuesday.

I am emailing Norris to get the RSVP phone for Hamill's party 4 Feb

Judith - This seems much more firmly worded than any previous date - let's hope it sticks. I think Norman mentioned that the 24th would be ok - please let me know if there's a problem. Best, Jeff hi, jeff.

we wanted to move forward with confirming filming of the round table in toronto on wednesday, march 24.

more details will be forthcoming, but we are looking at a probable mid-morning start. we will have norman, ron howard, brian grazer, akiva goldsman and russell crowe sit together to watch the braddock/baer fight with running commentary from them. then there will be a free-form conversation afterward. i imagine this will take no more than two hours total.

with the date change, the ron howard birthday party has gone by the wayside and will no longer be taking place.

greg messina from my office will be in touch with you and/or judith shortly to arrange travel and accommodations. please let norman know that if he would like to bring a guest, we are more than willing make arrangements for that as well.

also, please let me know if norman requires any special hair/make-up requirements so we can get that lined up.

thanks so much, jeff. looks like we're fairly a lock (finally) for this date. looking forward to it.

For June 11 - 13

Hi Judith,

Below are the details for Mr. Mailer's travel to Chicago. Cape Air arrives at terminal C know, the do use gate 33. For the connections, he can either:

1) Take Continental to Chicago from gates 25, 27, 30, 32, or 33...same "wing" of terminal without doing security again as we discussed. Continental will require a connection fro via Cleveland, there are no non stops.

2) Take Delta to Chicago...again with a plane change, they use gates 20,21,26029, 31, 3 and 42 in terminal C.....there are no non stop flight on Delta to Chicago.

3) Take United from Terminal C, although they use gates 11, 15-19, so he will need to ch areas and re-screen for security....BUT United is non stop to Chicago from Boston each

Below is a sample of each, with ample time for connections. Please advise how to p Thanks Scott

Another tale of woe

This schedule is not to my liking BUT—when I called to change your US airways flight, they told me all "senior discount seats" were gone on the 1:30 DC/Boston flight. If I insisted on that flight for you, with the change fee your Boston/DC/DC/Boston trip would come to $473!! (plus, of course, the commuter book RT on Cape Air.) This outrageous fare also applied to all DC/Boston flights later in the day.

BUT if I put you on the 12:30pm DC/Boston flight, I could get the senior discount and your total (including change fee) Boston/DC/DC/Boston trip would be $252. This was the latest flight of the day I could book and get you the lower fare. I figured to save $220, you'd want the 12:30 flight and locked it in.

So, damn it, apparently it DOES make a difference how quickly you change---they limit the number of senior discount seats they sell on every flight.

As for Cape Air on Sunday June 20, there IS a fl 217, leaves Terminal C at 3pm—your call, even with a wheelchair, is that cutting it too close? If you make superb time and are at the gate very early, they would probably put you on 217 (right now, I've left you on the 4:30pm Cape Air.) Let me know if you want to book the earlier ~~3:15pm~~ 3pm Cape Air, Flight 217

very tentative—standing invite to Prague Writers' Festival

Another tale of woe

This schedule is not to my liking BUT—when I called to change your US airways flight, they told me all "senior discount seats" were gone on the 1:30 DC/Boston flight. If I insisted on that flight for you, with the change fee your Boston/DC/DC/Boston trip would come to $473!! (plus, of course, the commuter book RT on Cape Air.) This outrageous fare also applied to all DC/Boston flights later in the day.

BUT if I put you on the 12:30pm DC/Boston flight, I could get the senior discount and your total (including change fee) Boston/DC/DC/Boston trip would be $252. This was the latest flight of the day I could book and get you the lower fare. I figured to save $220, you'd want the 12:30 flight and locked it in.

So, damn it, apparently it DOES make a difference how quickly you change---they limit the number of senior discount seats they sell on every flight.

As for Cape Air on Sunday June 20, there IS a fl 217, leaves Terminal C at 3pm—your call, even with a wheelchair, is that cutting it too close? If you make superb time and are at the gate very early, they would probably put you on 217 (right now, I've left you on the 4:30pm Cape Air.) Let me know if you want to book the earlier [redacted] Cape Air, flight 217 3pm
