

FRANZ KLINE (1910-1987)

The Abnott Experimental station here in Wilson is a historic landmark, the international reputation of American artists in the 1950s. Kline's studio, which is now the site of the 1955 U.S. Open, is a rare example of a modernist building. The stark, geometric lines of the structure, designed by Kline's son, are a testament to the artist's vision. The site is a rare example of a modernist building, designed by Kline's son, and is a testament to the artist's vision.

If you are going to the bathroom
please pick up
after yourself.

Your mother doesn't work here.
But if she did,
she'd say the same thing.

Clean Up

Please keep
the door
closed when you are using the restroom.
Thank you.
